This, the 52nd edition of the SYNAPSIS, maintains the tradition set forth by the Junior Class of 1924-25 to > "serve in a capacity allegorically similar to the anatomic unit in that it is to ever communicate the personnel and activities of one phase of animated existence to another more remote; that it shall transmit in the absence of a corporeal association; and that its preservation will make for an organized, co-ordinated, integrated, osteopathic whole."

Through the diligent efforts of a fine yearbook staff, I present to you — SYNAPSIS 1977.

I would like to give thanks to Carl Meyer and his staff along with Walt Webb of the Educational Communications Department for providing the hard work and determination in contributing to the SYNAPSIS photography; to Norman Vinn, for his literary counseling and direction to give correctness to our publication; to Bob Goldberg, for providing the literary essay portions throughout the book that would even make Howard Cosell shudder with excitement; to John Santaspirt, whose extraordinary talent at caricature and artwork is seen throughout the book; to Rosemarie Maynes, Linda Augelli, and Gerri Baird, for coordinating the 214 students of our class — their long hours of work in both communications and working with the students is well demonstrated in the Senior section; to Sol Lizerbram, who almost singled handedly acquired the necessary funds to publish the SYNAPSIS; to Don Hulmes and Sooze, for their help with the cover design and the artwork throughout the book; to Steve Merin of Hunter Publications, whose "How to" instructions saved us countless hours of non productive time; to my girlfriend, Jean Keefer, whose fast fingers saved me the time of playing chopstix on my typewriter; and to my parents, who tolerated my converting their family room into a yearbook office filled with thousands of pictures, papers, and overflowing wastebaskets.

As you read your copy of SYNAPSIS 1977, you will be taken on a journey of memorabilia and nostalgia most relevant to the Class of 1977. It is a reflection of the spirit and determination of the class that began on Registration Day, September 6, 1973.

Who will ever forget the first class with Dr. Mercer having us recite, in unison, the Osteopathic Oath and the Oath of Hippocrites? Or the first rumor — "there is no such thing as a free lunch."

I would now like to invite you to partake upon a glimpse of the 7,290 hours of didactic and clinical training that the class completed on June 5, 1977.

DEDICATION

Because we are the victims of a constantly increasing intellectual confusion, and are timid about digging beneath the surface of life, we find ourselves more emphatic about a knowledge of facts, and less concerned with the wisdom of beginnings and endings. But now, let us go below the surface of a man's life to the spiritual depths beneath, and behold the servile place of the world. The inestimable dignity of a man and the eternal promise which, crowning his life, dwarfs everything else in the universe.

For all seasons, even to the twilight of his life, a man must give back to the earth all that he has taken. To this sense of dedication to humanity, we wish to share acknowledgement of service to P.C.O.M., of a newcomer who came only a year before our time to find a welcome place in our sun — Dr. James Oliver Brown. He began his career in teaching in 1929 with a B.S. in Biology from the University of Michigan. He then pursued further studies at the same institution to earn an M.S. in Neuroanatomy, and a Ph.D in Gross Anatomy and Neuroanatomy. Through the years, he has taught at the University of Michigan, Emory University, the University of Pennsylvania, the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania, the University of Tennessee, and Jefferson Medical College.

He is a member of the Phi Sigma Society, Society of the Sigma Xi, American Association of Anatomists,

JAMES OLIVER BROWN

B.S., M.S., C.L.C., Ph.D., F.I.C.S.

American Association for the Advancement of Science (Fellow), State Anatomical Board, Cajal Club, American Association of University of Professors, Philadephia Physiological Society, International College of Surgeons (Fellow), American Medical Association (Affiliate), and the New Jersey Public Health Association.

Dr. Brown is listed in the American Men of Science, Who's Who in World Medicine, Who's Who in American Education, and Who's Who in the East.

He did pioneer research in the field of regenerative processes of the Central Nervous System, and into certain phases of nerve union and anastamosis in the peripheral nerves involving the cross-union of the phrenic and vagus nerves. He is a prolific writer with publications too numerous to list.

Today, we make acknowledgement to Dr. J.O. Brown, who found a home with us in our old Gothic Anatomy Lab and has shared many hours giving to all of us, his energy and enthusiasm.

We found him dedicated to giving back to humanity some measure of his information as well as his talents and achievements gleaned from over forty years of teaching and research. He joined our family without reserve. His major concern is being able to communicate with the students without falling into the abyss of a generation gap and not being accepted. Of course, he was accepted and is very much appreciated.

He tells of his delight with the students minds, the great desire to learn, and the "esprit d'corps' of our P.C.O.M. students. Of all his teaching years and experiences, he declares our students to be the most enthusiastic, most responsive, and best that he has ever had the pleasure of instructing.

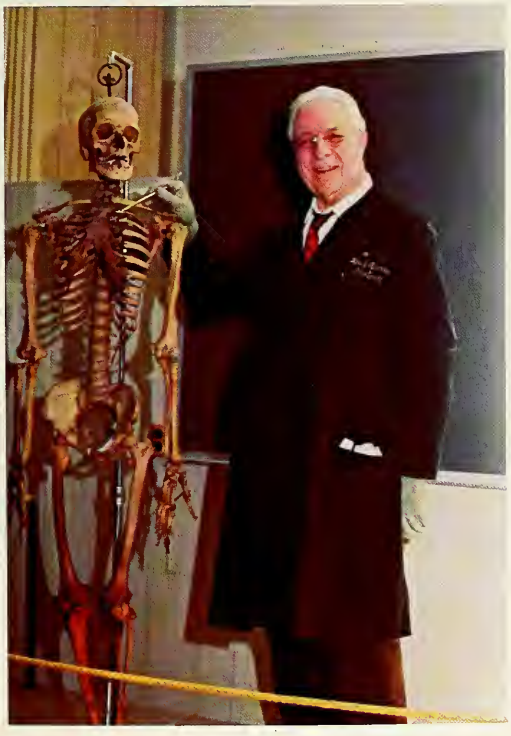
Standing out among us, arrayed in his black laboratory smock, he earnestly explains, "I must teach in my own way." That, he has most dramatically and effectively done, and our students sincerely thank him.

In our students is to be found tremendous desire to persue knowledge, to train, and understand fully. Dr. Brown has found the scholastic enthusiasm of our classmates most admirable.

To encourage excellence in anatomy, Dr. Brown has established a monetary prize, awarded at the end of each academic year in honor of his parents' memory, for that student who has succeeded in attaining the highest achievement in anatomy.

At last he has found a comfortable place, a peaceful place, and a place that respects a man who could teach in his own fashion. This happy place — P.C.O.M. — his home.

For a family are we, in a brotherhood supreme, with loyalty to all, following the paths already trodden bare by so many before us. We join with our commencement, our fellow physicians in the service of mankind.



Thus, we dedicate to Dr. James Oliver Brown, honorary member of the Class of '76, a special place in our book, in our memories, and in our hearts.

Philadelphia College o

Osteopathic Medicine

To the Class of 1977:

The status of being a student is, in some ways, an enviable one. This may be difficult to believe to those who have just completed four years of feeling bored, brilliant, and incompetent on an alternating basis.

But there is a freedom to student status not found past graduation — the freedom to criticize the medical education and patient care system randomly without being responsible for any part of it.

We all know that one never realizes the difficulty of being a parent until one is a parent him or her self. By the same token, only now that you begin to be "the captain of the ship" in patient care will you realize the responsibility you bear.

As your authority over the care given a patient increases, so too, will your responsibility. When you are part of a practice that bears your name; should you find yourself in a position of didactic and/or clinical teaching; when you participate in filling out the endless forms; when you are finally and emphatically a part of the system yourself — recall you days as a student.

Think back to those qualities and practices in the health care and education systems that you felt were deficient. Then you must be prepared to make a conscious effort to be different in those areas which you once criticized in others.

If there is a right to be critical of others, then there is a corresponding accountability to learn from those criticisms for yourself.

I wish each of you well . . . a fulfilling life, both personally and professionally.

I wish you success and contentments as an osteopathic physician.

THOMAS M. ROWLAND
President

And I hope that you will realize that our educational and patient care systems are not only dependent upon your criticisms, but, more upon your initiative.

CONGRATULATIONS, CLASS OF 1977!!

Thank you for the privilege of extending to your fine class my congratulations and greetings on behalf of the Faculty and Educational Administration.

You have come a long way in the past four years. We have seen you mature from anxious applicants for admission to PCOM to most promising osteopathic physicians. You are to be commended since you are a very select group admitted from a tremendous pool of applicants. You have proved the confidence of the Admissions Committee in successfully completing a most rigorous program of osteopathic medical education, and demonstrating your ability and earning the privilege and right to be called OSTEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN.

PCOM has also grown and matured with you. Your class is the largest class in the history of the College. The whole time faculty has been quadrupled; the part time faculty has been doubled. You were the first class to enjoy and profit by the new facilities at Evans Hall. You were among the first participants in a program of clinical training which is becoming a model utilized by some of the other osteopathic colleges. As has been true of most all PCOM graduates through the years, you will probably appreciate your osteopathic education most after about five years in practice, as one employs the abundance of knowledge mastered in the predoctoral days.

You are the class that will initiate one hundred more classes of PCOM physicians, and will be leaders during the third century of our Nation's history. I would advise you to keep well informed. Become leaders in the profession and the community. Be innovative, and be determined to help shape your own future destinies. Become involved.

Remember, Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine is always here to guide you and to be of assistance. You, as alumni and colleagues (as of June), are accorded an invitation to visit us frequently. Attend the Continuing Medical Education programs we offer the profession. You will be requesting letters from the Dean and others at the College, especially during the next few years; but also in the future, so keep in touch. We value your comments. Your evaluation of your education and your comments about future graduates as you participate in the near future in preceptorships, staff of affiliated hospitals, and other avenues of education will prove invaluable to us as we assess achievement of goals and objectives, and as continuing evaluation is carried out. We would hope that some of you will be interested in joining the College Faculty, and that many will become hospital staff members.

Be proud of being an osteopathic physician. Do your part in making the osteopathic profession a great one. You chose it for a career. We felt you had great potential. Your commencement is a positive indication of the confidence the College has in you as well-founded, and a positive indication of your achievement as an osteopathic physician.

Be proud of your College. Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine is the largest osteopathic college and the ninth largest of all colleges of medicine (both schools of the healing arts). Be loyal to your College and your profession. They will provide you many opportunities of health care and other service to the community and carry a respect we challenge you to merit in the quality care of patients. We are proud of our graduates. You are PCOM along with the Faculty, Administration, and Staff. Remember the dedication of many who made your education possible. We are ever thankful for those dedicated to osteopathic education, with altruistic motivation, love of students, committed to a profession, who help make it all possible. Support your college, and fulfill your obligations to future generations of students.

I have enjoyed this class, and have been delighted to have been your Dean. You are a class of individualists. I happen to respect and appreciate that. I am convinced that many of your classmates will be leaders in our profession and in their communities, and that some will be with us on faculty before long. It has been a privilege to work with you. Do not hesitate to call us for assistance in the future. PCOM and the Dean's Office is here to serve you.

On behalf of the Faculty, all the members of the Educational Administration, and our PCOM team, may I extend hearty best wishes to each one. May God bless you.

Sincerely,

Robert W. England, D.O.

Hippocratic Oath

I swear by Apollo the physician, and Aesculapius, and Hygeia, and Panacea, and all the gods, and goddesses that according to my ability and judgment.

I will keep this oath and this stipulation—to reckon him who taught me this art equally dear to me as my parents, to share my substance with him, and relieve his necessities if required to look upon his offspring in the same footing as my own brothers and to teach them this art if they shall wish to learn it,

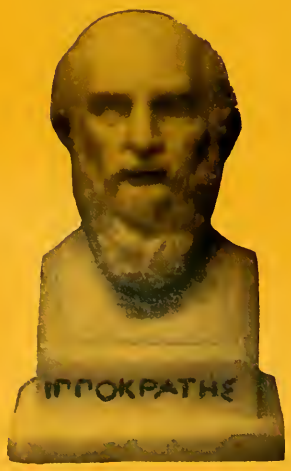
Without fee or stipulation and that by precept lecture, and every other mode of instruction, I will impart a knowledge of the art to my own sons, and those of my teachers, and to disciples bound by a stipulation and oath

According to the law of medicine but to none others, I will follow the system of regiment which, according to my ability and judgment, I consider

For the benefit of my patients and abstain from whatever is deleterious and mischievous, I will give no deadly medicine to any one if asked nor suggest any such counsel, and in like manner I will not give to a woman a pessary to produce abortion.

With purity and with holiness I will pass my life and practice my art. I will not cut persons laboring under the stone, but will leave this to be done by men who are practitioners of this work. Into whatever houses I enter, I will go into them for the benefit of the sick, and will abstain from every voluntary act of mischief and corruption; and further from the seduction of females or males, of freemen and slaves. Whatever in connection with my professional practice or not in connection with it, I see or hear, in the life of men, which ought not to be spoken of abroad,

I will not divulge as reckoning that all such should be kept secret. While I continue to keep this oath unviolated, may it be granted to me to enjoy life and the practice of the art respected by all men in all times! But should I trespass and violate this oath, may the reverse be my lot!



Osteopathic Oath

I do hereby affirm my loyalty to the profession I am about to enter.

I will be mindful always of my great responsibility to preserve the health and life of my patients, to retain their confidence and respect, both as a physician and a friend who will guard their secrets with scrupulous honor and fidelity, to perform faithfully my professional duties, to employ only those recognized methods of treatment consistent with good judgment and with my skill and ability, keeping in mind always nature's laws and the body's inherent capacity for recovery.

I will be ever vigilant in aiding the general welfare of the community, sustaining its laws and institutions, not engaging in those practices which will in any way bring shame or discredit upon myself or my profession.

I will give no deadly drugs to any, though it be asked of me.

I will endeavor to work in accord with my colleagues in a spirit of progressive cooperation and never by word or by act cast imputations upon them or their rightful practices.

I will look with respect and esteem upon all those who have taught me my art.

To my college, I will be loyal and strive always for its best and for the interests of the students who will come after me.

I will be ever alert to and adhere to and develop the principles of Osteopathy as taught by Andrew Taylor Still.

Dear Classmates,

The days of final exams are long behind us. The days of case management without total responsibility are rapidly coming to an end. The days of practicing someone else's brand of medicine are surely numbered. And the days of our minute by minute, day by day, year by year "final exams" are approaching rapidly as we prepare to embark on a lifetime of individual practice in the art and science of healing and helping other human beings.

As for me, the past four years have been fraught with crisis, joy, sadness, learning, disappointment, love, hate, anxiety, popular and unpopular decisions. But in retrospect, with one eye fixed on my future responsibilities, the canceled exams, the away rotations, the questionable grades, all of the frustrations of the past four years seem very small in comparison. A devious plan begins to come into focus, and as I wonder if that plan was intentional or unintentional, I realize that it doesn't really matter. I have been taught the basic language of medicine, I have been under the tutelage of city physicians and country physicians, ivory tower specialists and hard working generalists; I have been taught medicine, but more important, I have been forced into teaching myself and bringing myself to a level of competence that I can live with. I wonder if that wasn't the plan all along? I have learned to put aside the irritants and devote my full attention to the patient in my charge. I wonder if that wasn't the plan all along? I have learned to be independent without being impudent. I wonder if the plan was to keep me just angry enough and just disdainful enough to make myself good out of spite?

Whatever the plan, whatever the method, whatever the means, the result is the measure of success. For my money, success has been achieved with each of us. Today I am a DOCTOR OF OSTEOPATHIC MEDICINE, a physician in every respect. I have achieved a lifelong goal that would not have been possible without the total experience provided by the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine. For that I pledge my eternal gratitude and support. As we go our separate ways and begin our separate careers, I would ask that each of you give serious consideration to the "end result" and join me in my pledge.

May God go with each of you.

Sincerely,

H. Sprague Taveau, IV, D.O.

PCOM FAMILY

In Memoriam

1900 - 1976

FREDERIC H. BARTH

Chancellor

It couldn't be more appropriate to memorialize DR. FREDERIC H. BARTH on page 18. The number "18" is represented in the Hebrew language as "Chai". A term closely associated with "Chaim" — meaning "Life". And so it is to be that Dr. Barth be remembered as bringing LIFE to the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine.

Dr. Barth had been active on the board of trustees of the college since 1948 and served as chief executive officer from June 1957 to June 1974, when he was appointed chancellor.

Through his guidance and leadership, the college purchased the 16-acre Moss estate at City Ave. and Monument Road in 1957.

The expansion program at this site has made PCOM the ninth largest medical college in the United States, with an enrollment of 818.

During Dr. Barth's administration, health-care out-reach programs were inaugurated in the Philadelphia area as well as at a rural health-care center in Sullivan County, Pa.

Dr. Barth was a graduate of the Philadelphia College of Textiles and Science and served as chairman of the college's committee on faculty and curriculum and as chairman of the educational committee. He was also a former president of Textile's Aluini Association.

His honorary degrees include the doctor of science degree from PCOM in 1951 and doctor of laws degree from the Des Moines College of Osteopathic Medicine and Surgery in 1956.

Dr. Barth was a member of the board of education in Philadelphia from 1957 to 1965.

He served as acting postmaster of Philadelphia under an appointment by President Eisenhower from July 1959 to January 1961.

Dr. Barth served on the Technical Committee on Government and Nongovernment Organization of the White House Conference on Aging in 1970. In 1971 he was appointed by President Nixon to membership in the U.S. delegation to the United Nations Commission on Human Rights, and attended sessions in Geneva, Switzerland.

He was a former president and treasurer to the Mercer Rubber Co. of New York, and president of Fifer & Beatty, Inc., a hardware supply firm; and Hainesworth Supply Co., a building maintenance supply house. He also held several patents for textile equipment.

Dr. Barth received the O.J. Snyder Memorial Award, PCOM's Highest honor, and the St. George Medal of St. George's United Methodist Church.

Also, the American Osteopathic Association's Distinguished Service Certificate, and the Psi Sigma Alpha Award from the National Osteopathic Scholastic Honor Society.

Dr. Barth was a member of Delta Kappa Phi Fraternity, the Union League, Engineer's Club, Capitol Hill Club, Pennsylvania Society, Rotary Club, American Osteopathic Association, Pennsylvania Osteopathic Medical Association, American Association of Colleges of Osteopathic Medicine, Variety Club, 21 Jewel Square Club, Histadrudt, and St. Katherine of Siena Roman Catholic Church, Torresdale.

He was also a board member of the University City Science Center and served as president of the American Association of Colleges of Osteopathic Medicine from 1969-70.

Most of all, Dr. Barth was the leader of the PCOM family.

FACULTY AND ADMINISTRATION

So alike, and yet so very different. That was the first issue presented to us as we began our careers in osteopathic medicine. Changes were needed in the way that a problem was approached and conceptualized. A need to focus attention to specifics in a mind so used to appreciating the general, describes the feat that the faculty had to accomplish. Values were not threatened, just altered a bit in order to create a system of thought that is capable of separating the necessary from the superfluous.

Liberalization was the goal of the under-graduate college. Familiarity with a scope of ideas and feelings that ranged from Archimedes to Pirandello was acquired. Achieved was the ability to respect the differences, rather than acclaim conformity. Worth was determined by appraisal of an idea within the structure of the time period and location, not by its degree of consonance with our own.

The faculty was presented a collection of students confident in their ability to produce, but, uncertain to what it was that they were to deal with. Marriage of a science to an art is almost contradictory. Where was the thrust of concentration to be placed: on the facts that are sure to change in the next few years; or on the ability to rely on results that are seemingly unexplainable? That solution was never attempted. The faculty decided that the best care to the patient is delivered by a practitioner who commands as much factual information as possible, but, is delivered in a fashion that translates one's humanity. The latter is left to us to extract from our mentors and ourselves.

DEPARTMENT OF ANATOMY

Anatomy, a branch of science dealing with the structure of the organism and the size of the organ. Will we ever forget those structures so essential to our education — Camper's fascia, the axillary sheath, Batson's veins? And those other structures which further expanded our knowledge — Dewey's, the Log house, Dirty Frank's, Five Points . . .

Formalin hangovers became a way of life, but luckily we had V.T. to buoy us up with humorous remarks: "There's no mystery to the hand!" and, "Nothing hard about Neuroanatomy — a few tracts up, a few tracts down . . .

Health Care Centers

Without a doubt, the most unique clinical exposure came by way of the health care centers of P.C.O.M. After hastening fearfully to the clinic's entrance and making a beeline past the broken steampipe, the junior student made his residence inside one of the many booths. From that point, henceforth, he was to be known as "Da Boof Docta."

Fearfully, he drew his first vacutainer on one of the many hypertensive diabetics placed under his care. They told him that practice makes perfect. He may not have been perfect, but, he sure did practice! Even the most aggressive students wondered why it was necessary to bring back every patient each week.

Where else were drug salesmen forced to lure their audiences with coffee and donuts? And woe betide them if they arrived without samples!

Perhaps the best aspect of the clinics was the unique pathology that one encountered. How could the student be concerned about the Fisher Variant of the Guillan-Barre Syndrome when he was grappling with such unique clinical idiosyncrasies as:

Sick as Hell Anemia,
Fireballs of the Eucharist,
Tubal Litigation,
Smilin' Mind of Jesus,
Vomikans,
Purple Vaginal Discharges (Be specific about the EXACT type of contraceptive jelly), and of course, the communicable disease we all contracted — THE MISERIES.

BOVININE. Contains every element in a full and proper proportion necessary to completely feed every tissue of the human body

BOVININE. Has no competition, as all other prepared and liquid foods feed only in part, hence their field of usefulness is limited and nature must accomplish the rest, and this she can seldom do.

BOVININE. Is not antagonistic to any medication, but greatly aids the therapeutic action of drugs. It is indicated at all ages and in all conditions.

BOVININE. Locally as a dressing in all forms of ulceration or any peripheral starvation is ideal.

BOVININE. Is ready for immediate assimilation, does not disturb, but gives the gastro-intestinal tract full and complete rest.

BOVININE. Is rich in assimilable organic iron and is sterile.

DEPARTMENT OF OSTEOPATHIC PRINCIPLES AND PRACTICE

One always wonders about the obsession a professor has with silence in a classroom. For some reason a lecturer believes that if a student body is quiet, it is primafacia evidence that the material is being absorbed and enjoyed. How do so many people forget that people are also quiet if they are sleeping? No problem with that concept in this department. In fact, a failure can ensue if noise is not heard, especially a snap followed by an "oooh and aaahh."

DEPARTMENT OF PATHOLOGY

Pathology — "the study of the essential nature of disease." The essential nature of the course was to teach, through all available media and techniques; lecture, memorization, and practical labs. And teach us it did. Pathology is the only National Board section we all legitimately passed without the backies. A tribute to a perfect blend of teaching techniques and personality.

The most awesome of these had to be the infamous glass bottle. One student among our ranks tells of a recurrent nightmare where he is attacked by a giant dermoid cyst, entangled in teeth and hair. He awakens not knowing if it was his Saturday night date or those long lecture hours at the mercy of a dude in cowboy boots, who is occasionally interrupted by phone calls from Pizza Town.

The credit for our knowledge and success in this field must go to the master — affectionately known and remembered as the one and only — "Greeny."

It is amazing how the appearance of the lecturer gives a hint about the course material. If he walks in with two cigarettes in his mouth, the topic will most likely be ENT. A pipe is sported by the respiratory disease expert. When the lecturer belches and has the runs, think of Gastroenterology. But when the lecturer walks in with jeans, a T-shirt, a pony-tail, and a beard — it has got to be Psychiatry.

DEPARTMENT OF RADIOLOGY

Radiology — "the use of radiant energy in medicine." Yes, we indeed approached this subject with a radiant energy coursing through our bodies. The fuel for our energy was adrenalin — enough to light up Philadelphia! When that awesome pointer was aimed at you, or your class number was called, your first response was "fight or flight." By then everything was forgotten — x-rays, EKG's, and your own name! Where was Lucy Squire when we needed her? Wasn't she the red head that sat down front? What ever happened to Hilar Adenopathy and Magan Blassa? Aren't those the guys who owned condominiums in Florida? But who could ever forget the Jolly old Elf himself!

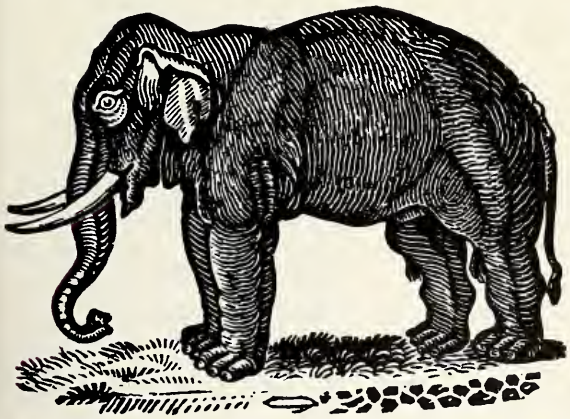
ON THE ART OF ORDER WRITING
— A FANTASY —

Few things in our clinical years were more frequent topics of conversation than students' responsibilities assumed during our rotations. All of our directors had another excuse to offer us as to why we were not permitted to write orders on charts. If we refused to accept these ruses, our bedrooms would not be safe from third party payers in black cloaks, our kitchens would be victim to nurses in wolf's clothing, and our bathrooms would be violated by the utilization committee impersonating an impaction.

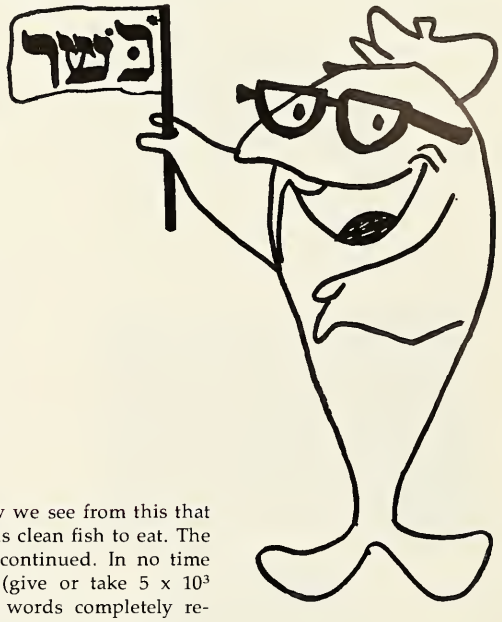
Surely these could not be accepted as anything more than auditory hallucinations bouncing off the walls of CERTAIN Delaware Valley hospital administrators. Mind you, fear was always bubbling within their sclerosed vessels that we would expose the truth. And what was the truth? Simply that the requirements for hospital administration did not include the ability to read! Hence, they were threatened by our versatility of both reading and writing.

Consider for a moment the history of writing — the most significant development that enabled man to advance. Albeit, early authors were not Hemmingway, nor even a Shultz, but, they tried. Here is an example of an early attempt:



Unfortunately, this tells us very little. Did the author mean that he had an elephant for dinner? Or was he complaining that they had run out of filet of elephant?

Luckily, this form of writing improved with the transformation of letters into words. Eventually, signs like the one offered below became popular.



Now we see from this that there is clean fish to eat. The trend continued. In no time at all (give or take 5 x 10^3 years) words completely replaced the need for pictures.

It is a shame that we are straying away from all of this. But man, like the metabolism of citric acid, is cyclical. Rather than seeing a NO SMOKING sign, there is this picture:

What a setback! But perhaps not. Maybe if the administrators could see what we have ordered instead of having to READ it, they would let us make use of our continuingly underestimated Betz cells. Hence, enjoy the results of this reasoning in the following example . . .

PCOM RUGBY TEAM

Our first year was a year of beginnings. One of the most prodigious of these was the RUGBY TEAM. In 1973, PCOM became a charter member of the Eastern Pennsylvania Rugby Union.

As neophytes to this demanding and sometimes violent sport, we were looked upon at first with mild disdain. By season's end, however, we emerged as first place champs in the EPRU. Disdain gave way to respect.

The following senior members were instrumental in PCOM'S success in Rugby: Captain "Henry" Krahe; player-coach "Mad stork" Haberstroh; "Snakebite" D'Alonzo; "Roach" Herskowitz; "Tongue" Landis; and Ruggers Rich Adams, John Guluzian, Tom Haffey, John Kenney, Carl Meyer, and Art Maslow.

PHI SIGMA GAMMA

Phi Sigma Gamma, Osteopathic Medical Fraternity, holds title to a rich tradition at P.C.O.M. Alumini include many physicians who have distinguished themselves in various osteopathic specialties. Undergraduate brothers excel in didactic and clinical studies, as well as in sports and socializing. The "rough touch" football team coached by faculty advisor, Dr. Robert Meals, swamped the other fraternity in the annual Porcelain Bowl 62-0. Although our house is still located in West Philadelphia, our parties still draw more people than any other social events at P.C.O.M.

A cameraderie exists between the active brothers of Phi Sig that is unique among the P.C.O.M. community. We wish our graduating brothers Ed Balaban, Lou Bierman, George Bonafino, Frank Brescia, Andy Burachinsky, Harry Burkhardt, Nick Canuso, Gil D'Alonzo, Dick Gladding, Bill Haberstroh, Tom Haffey, Jim Hammett, John Kenny, Joe Klos, Eric Krieg, Tony Landis, Joe Lozito, Jim McDonald, Mike Najarian, Frank Noonan, Gary Oberholtzer, Paul Palmerio, Charlie Semprevivo, John Sherm, Mike Tedesco, Mike Venditto, John Wilson, John Woods, Frank Yartz, and Larry Zelonis the best of luck in the coming years, and invite them back to "have a few with the boys" whenever they are in town.

STUDENT SPOUSES AUXILIARY

It has been said that behind every great man is a strong woman. Napolean had Josephine, George had Martha, and Abraham had Sarah. The strongest of women is undoubtably the wife of a medical student. However, this elite group now includes husbands, as the medical school population of female students grows. Therefore, the Student Wives Association has been renamed the STUDENT SPOUSES AUXILIARY to include the husbands in their organization.

Medicine is a very jealous mistress. The frustrations and anxieties it creates are sometimes only begun to be allayed by graduation. Today's student spouse has to cope with the all too frequent loneliness that is created by long hours studying, and away rotations, for weeks at a time, in "Nowheres Land, U.S.A."

Planned dinners at home are often reduced to "hamburgers on the run" leaving the main meal to be either frozen or wasted. The children suffer as they are unintentionally neglected by the parent student. Money seems forever scarce as bank checks bounce, and loans are refused. Even lovemaking, a paramount position in any marriage, is often reduced to " . . . sorry honey, I'm too tired tonight . . . and tonight . . . and tonight."

With all these drawbacks, many marriages deteriorate. However, it is an organization such as the Student Spouses Auxiliary that brings these unrequited lovers together.

In addition to providing morale for its members, the SSA provides such services as fund raisings for the A.O.A. Loan and Scholarship Seals Program, the Osteopathic Progress fund, and their own emergency fund. Some of their fund raising activities include bake sales, raffles, and the sampling of food for a marketing research firm. These efforts provide such things as clinic coats at a discount price for students, and free coffee and donuts for the students during board examination week. The SSA also sponsors dinners, freshmen teas, and senior luncheons.

"And happy lives shall be yours, because busy and useful; having been initiated into the great secret — that happiness lies in the absorption in some vocation which satisfies the soul; that we are here to add what we can to, not to get what we can from, life.

"And, finally, remember what we are — useful supernumeraries in the battle, simply stage accessories in the drama, playing minor, but essential, parts at the exits and entrances, or picking up, here and there, a strutter, who may have tripped upon the stage. You have been much by the dark river — so near to us all — and have seen so many embark, that the dread of the old boatman has almost disappeared, and . . . your passport shall be the blessing of Him in whose footsteps you have trodden, unto whose sick you have ministered, and for whose children you have cared."

Time present and time past
Are both perhaps present in time future,
And time future contained in time past.
If all time is eternally present
All time is unredeemable.
What might have been is an abstraction
Remaining a perpetual possibility
Only in a world of speculation.
Footfalls echo in the memory
Down the passage which we did not take
Towards the door we never opened
Into the rose garden . . .

Love and Appreciation

To Jim, my devoted husband for his love, concern, confidence, pride, understanding, support, and encouragement through the years.

To Michelle and Jimmy, for being the "two greatest kids" a mom could have — For their childish faith that "Mom's a Doctor — she can fix it."

To my beloved parents Daniel and Mary Leandri, for their unending loyalty, love, interest, and pride.

To PCOM, for the opportunity, fine education, and the D.O. degree.

THE SUMMATION

There is that which ends and never ends — the sun, the waters, the hill and the rain; and those who have done their work and feel for each other, and all of us, together, one.

Two roads diverged in a yellow wood,
And sorry I could not travel both
And be one traveler, long I stood
And looked down one as far as I could
To where it bend in the undergrowth;

Then took the other, as just as fair
And having perhaps the better claim,
Because it was grassy and wanted wear;
Though as for that, the passing there
Had worn them really about the same.

And both that morning equally lay
In leaves no step had trodden back.
Oh, I kept the first for another day!
Yet knowing how way leads on to way,
I doubted if I should ever come back.

I shall be telling this with a sigh
Somewhere ages and ages hence:
Two roads diverged in a wood, and I —
I took the one less traveled by,
And that has made all the difference.
— Robert Frost

"He might be only half your age, and often there's still a trace of the college look about him. But something else is beginning to show in his face too — the look of the man who knows he is needed. And maybe that is why, even if you are older than he, and higher up in the world, you find a note of respect in your voice when you call him 'Doctor.' A few months before, he was a student squinting through a microscope at the enemies of your body. Now, as a intern, he's still junior to almost everybody. In time he will forget the harshness of that year, the weariness, and the strain. He will remember it as the year he learned that it is a great thing to be needed, and when needed, to be there."

HIGH FLIGHT

By John Gillespie Magee, Jr.

Oh, I have slipped the surly bonds of earth
  And danced the skies on laughter-silvered wings;
Sunward I've climbed and joined the tumbling mirth
  Of sun-split clouds — and done a hundred things
You have not dreamed of — wheeled and soared and swung
  High in the sunlit silence. Hov'ring there,
I've chased the shouting wind along, and flung
  My eager craft through footless halls of air.
Up, up the long, delirious, burning blue
  I've topped the windswept heights with easy grace
Where never lark, or even eagle flew.
  And, while with silent, lifting mind I've trod
The high untrespassed sanctity of space,
  Put out my hand, and touched the face of God.

"I would rather be ashes than dust. I would rather my spark should burn out in a brilliant blaze than it would be stifled in dry rot.

I would rather be a superb meteor, every atom of me in magnificent glow, than a sleepy and permanent planet.

Man's chief purpose is to LIVE, not to exist.

I shall not waste my days trying to prolong them.

I shall use my time."

THE VAULT

The feet have beaten down the path
With sweat and strain streaming forth.
Progression of years flow in each step.
As knowledge mounts to form the staff.
The tool of success is carried to the pit,
And the point is planted after 20 years.

Of all the muscle to travel the runway,
None compares with the strength for take-off,
Body aching and arching forward
The catapulted form is now airborne.
Slowly floating higher and higher,
Always edging closer to the peak.
Helped by books and time to ponder,
Learning the use of my worldly senses.
And now that day of reaching the zenith,
As all those dreams are to be fulfilled.

Suspended at the apex on this marvelous day,
Gives time to reflect on that long journey.
Reflection of that boyhood dream
Developed and molded for many years.
Also anticipation of the future
Knowing that compassion and warmth will aid my knowledge.

Never forget the value of life.
The oath taken reinforces that commitment
To heal and help all human beings.
Working with children of all shapes and sizes
The payment of smiles fills my soul.
To be rich in their thank you's
and friendly favors,
Being satisfied in their progression of life.
This beautiful world now lies before me,
As I soar into the life called MEDICINE.

Murray Zedeck, D.O., F.A.O.C. Rh.
Nelson E. Ziets, D.O.

"You're young and dynamic. So, chances are, you want young and dynamic leadership where you choose to intern.

"Well, come and get it—at Delaware Valley Hospital."

"Medicine rightly honors those who have served long and well. But it's no contradiction to value youth and dynamism.

"In fact, at Delaware Valley Hospital, we're proud that our leadership comprises some of the finest, young osteopathic physicians anywhere.

"For example, our chief of staff has lived a busy, achieving 33 years. The Department of Medicine chairman, in ability and background, is an 'old' 34. Our board treasurer is all of 35. And so forth.

"That's impressive, we think you'll agree. When combined, though, with the range of facilities, equipment, and programs found at our hospital, it amounts to something you may want to look into.

"Why not telephone me personally, when convenient, and I'll answer any questions. Who am I? Why, I'm Chandler Ford, Jr., the administrator—at 39, one of the gray-beards here."

Chandler Ford, Jr.

Penn Mutual

Medical & Dental Students,
Interns & Residents

You can afford permanent life insurance coverage. Now. On your present budget.

Now you are eligible for Penn Mutual's new Professional Premium Finance Program, qualifying for amounts of Permanent life insurance up to $100,000.

After a small cash down payment, Penn Mutual will finance up to six years of your premiums (based upon your continued education and training), and you pay only a low 6% simple interest during the period your premium loan is outstanding.

Throughout your graduate study and residency years you can have the protection you need—and probably thought you couldn't afford until you were in practice. You owe it to yourself and your family to find out more about this valuable program.
